

THE HOFFMAN FAMILY MISSIONARIES TO BELGIUM

June 3, 2025

Hello from the Hoffman family,

This year has seemed to go by very quickly, it feels like we just blinked and we are already into June. Thank you to all those that reached out and let me know they were praying for me during my bout with vertigo, I appreciate every one of you. I'm feeling better now, but still struggling with fatigue, not sure why, but at least the dizziness is gone. I did get a little worried when they told me they didn't see anything during the brain scan, but then I realized it was nothing wrong, not that the brain was absent.

We had another baptism last month, Tony, the older brother of Jo, who got baptized two months ago, decided it was time for him to get saved and baptized. I've been blessed to baptize three different McSweeney siblings in a span of five months. There are three more siblings, but they are all pretty young still. The next one coming up is a real firecracker though; I had to physically grab him so he wouldn't jump into the baptistery like he wanted to. He told me he was going to do a "Chris cannon ball" into the warm water. They definitely keep church interesting and fun.

Church is still going strong, we're staying consistently pretty full and there seems to be a very sweet spirit to the church. Jen has her hands full with a lot of kids in children's church, but she does a great job with them. Keira has stepped up as the church piano player since Joab is still in the States and she has done a very good job as well. It's pretty impressive, the song leader sends the songs to me on Monday, and she learns them by the end of the week to be ready for Sunday. I'm thankful for a family that wants to serve the Lord together. We've had a theme for the last several weeks called Family Focus and the church people have really enjoyed it. We have noticed though, that ever since I started that series, that the devil seems to really be going after our family through different things, so some extra prayer would be nice. We have ordered some scripture signs in French and they hopefully will be coming in soon, we're going street preaching again in a few weeks and we're excited to try them out.

Thank you for all you do for us, we are so thankful to be one of your missionaries. In a day and age where many don't really want to serve the Lord, the fact that churches and individuals give to keep people on the foreign field is a blessing and we are grateful for that.

In Christ,
